Federico Barocci Italian. These large studies of heads and hands, broadly modeled in colored chalks, were preparatory for the figure of an apostle seated at the table near Christ in Barocci ' s monumental canvas The Last Supper. The painting was an important commission by Guidobaldo II Della Rovere, Duke of Urbino and Pesaro, and was executed by Barocci between 1592 and 1599 for the Chapel of the Holy Sacrament in the Urbino Cathedral, where it still hangs.

Federico Barocci; a critical study in Italian Cinquecento ...
Federico Barocci (also spelled Baroccio or Barrocio) was one of the greatest and most individual Old Masters of the central Italian school in the late 16th century. Active mostly in Urbino and the surrounding small towns, his painting comprises mostly Christian art , combining the influence of Correggio, Raphael and Titian in an elegant and sensitive manner.

Federico Barocci: Italian Painter, Early Baroque
In a recent review of Stuart Lingo ' s important Federico Barocci: Allure and Devotion in Late Renaissance Painting (New Haven: Yale University Press, 2009), Charles Dempsey remarked that Barocci has been " exceptionally fortunate in the caliber of scholarship devoted to his work " (The Art Bulletin 92, no. 3 [September 2010]: 252), mentioning authors ranging from Harald Olsen (Federico Barocci: A Critical Study in Italian Cinquecento Painting, Stockholm: Almqvist and Wiksell, 1955; 2nd ...

While Barocci was removed from Rome, the fulcrum of artistic fame and influence, he continued to innovate in his style. At some point he may have seen colored chalk/pastel drawings by Correggio, but Barocci's remarkable pastel studies are the earliest examples of the technique to survive. In pastels and in oil sketches (another technique he pioneered) Barocci's soft, opalescent renderings evoke the ethereal.

Federico Barocci - Wikipedia
Born in the Marchigian town of Urbino, Federico Barocci was one of the most talented and innovative artists of late 16th-century Italy. He flourished in a town that had become one of the great cultural centres of the Renaissance, and had also been the birthplace of his famous predecessor Raphael, by whom he was much influenced.

FRIDAY ART CAT: Federico Barocci (1535-1612) - Katzenworld
Federico Barocci was born in the humanist centre of Urbino, in central eastern Italy, around 1533. The son of a watchmaker, he flourished in a town that had become one of the great cultural centres of the Renaissance, producing artists such as Raphael. Thanks to the collections that had been formed by the Montefeltro and Della Rovere families, as well as the paintings that adorned local churches, Barocci was afforded early and intimate contact with the works of renowned painters such as the ...

This is not to be pedantic, but rather to reveal Barocci as a critical player in the development of a significant aspect of the art market in the modern era. Here is an artist who capitalizes on a type of preparatory work he himself developed which then takes on yet another function becoming something saleable.

About this artwork. After Raphael, Federico Barocci was the most important painter from Urbino; like Raphael, Barocci prepared for his painted compositions with an elaborate series of drawings. One of thirty-six known studies for his Deposition, painted c. 1568 / 69 for the Chapel of San Bernardino in the Cathedral of Perugia, this is one of three life-sized drawings, or "cartoons," from which he transferred his design to its support.
