and scientific admissions screening, believes the answer to all of the above questions is a resounding "YES". In this thought-provoking book, he explains how using first principles in psychology, immunology, sociology, evolutionary biology, statistics, physics, and chemistry can help universities select applicants passionate about their future professions. After convincing the readers about the flaws of current admissions screening practices - such as the use of situational judgment tests, standardized tests, and traditional interviews - he explains a step-by-step action plan described in 14 "rules" designed for any educational institution seeking to construct a fair and scientific admissions screening process. The book is filled with blunt reasoning debunking common myths and lighthearted humor about what to do instead suitable for admissions professionals, researchers and anyone interested in applicant screening in higher education. Here's what you are going to learn in this book: The fundamental problems with current admissions screening practices that lead to profound bias against minority groups and lower income applicants How to streamline the entire admissions process into one single step The Big Three(tm): The only 3 qualities that matter in admissions screening How to select applicants based on The Big Three characteristics How to design questions that seek the truth from each applicant How to separate highly suitable applicants from the rest without any guess work or "gut feeling" How to design questions that promote diversity while being fair to applicants How to increase the reliability and validity of any admissions screening practice or tool How to democratize the admissions process and educational institutions Sample questions and answers for admissions teams And much more!
